

Tradition & Today – continued

As the town spread northward and new settlers arrived, a third and final sanctuary was constructed on Ridgefield Road in 1790. Today, that building stands as the oldest meeting house still in use in Fairfield County and one of the 12 oldest in Connecticut.

WCC is a church that honors tradition and embraces innovation. Ever forward looking, we seek new approaches to living out the Gospel in relevant, contemporary ways. As our relationship with God deepens, we come to know ourselves more intimately. We open—to one another, to new ideas, to people of other spiritual traditions and walks of life. As our faith, love, maturity and knowledge expand, so does our world.
